2018

CATALOGUE

Dear NeXtime friends,

I am very proud to introduce the new catalogue for 2018 with many new ideas. It is always a lot of work to bring everything together. Our new products are a combination of trends, inspiration, creativity, heritage, persistence and the love for clocks.

All these factors combined, together with the great NeXtime team, bring together what the NeXtime collection stands for. But also the people supporting NeXtime from our distributors, designers to our factories are essential. All of these parties are doing their best to cope with the changing world. This goes from very strong new environmental rules in China to the ever growing online business with many new demands. All these factors influence our production, supply and demand for our products. As NeXtime, we do our very best to cope with all these factors in the best way we can, though this has not always been easy. With this new 2018 collection and the cooperation with several new distributors and bigger clients around the world we have confidence 2018 will be a good year.

I hope you enjoy our new ideas and we look forward to receiving your feedback.

See you NeXtime,
Alain Frie

SYMBOLS

The following symbols are used in this catalogue to describe the features of a clock. You will also find these symbols on our gift boxes.

DESIGNERS

In addition to the in-house designers we work with freelancers who have a wide variety of skills. You can also become one of our designers. If you have a great concept you would like to share with us you can be included in the next catalogue.

Mail your ideas as detailed as possible to:

info@nextime.eu

It is time for an 'up close and personal' with some of our designers. Check out the rest of our design team online:

A FEW OF OUR GREAT DESIGNERS

JETTE SCHEIB (DE)

Jette Scheib studied industrial design at the University of the Arts (UdK), Berlin, and has worked since 2005 as an independent product designer specializing in home accessories. Her work can be plain and pure or narrative and playful, but often with a little twist that adds a new context or dimension to a functional object. Inspiration is everywhere: whether it is art, music, people and their stories, habits, clichés or simply life itself that feeds her creativity. She lives and works in Barcelona.

NEXTIME

STUDIOPANG (IT)

Fabio Damiani and Marco Quistini created studioPANG in October 2012, with the common idea that by combining different skills and passions, the project approach is enriched with new issues and perspectives. Design, architecture and communication are places of comparison before becoming a projectual theme. StudioPANG is an open laboratory of constant research and development of ideas and projects: an open and dynamic environment that involves different experiences to create a professional multi-faceted reality.

EWALD WINKELBAUER (DE)

"Comprehend with all senses" is the philosophy of the German designer Ewald Winkelbauer's work. This shows amongst others in pens, household aids, lamps and urban furniture for renowned companies. He won plenty of national and international design awards and is shown in the MIK museum in Ludwigsburg. Probably not a hand which hasn't held his redesign of the Stabilo Boss Textmarker.

STORES

From our humble beginnings and in the establishment of the NeXtime brand 50 years ago, retail stores have always played a key role. With thousands of stores around the world now, it's clear that our love for beautiful clock designs transcends language and culture.

Although online sales are highly increasing, it is still important to have an offline presence. Customers want both. They often opt for online because of the large choice to compare products and read reviews.

But they also frequently choose offline because of the experience and personal service. Which we highly value for our products.

Here are some great examples of stores that make it faster and easier for shoppers to find our products which are proven to increase shopper spending. Retail stores committed to become a NeXtime brand center benefit the most and receive special store support.

QUALITY CONTROL

The quality of our products is one of the most important issues when developing and manufacturing our clocks.

We just love clocks, and we want to make sure you get them in good shape!

To maintain our high quality and to make sure all the people who will buy a NeXtime clock will have the ultimate NeXtime experience, we are checking all our goods before they are shipped out. This is done by our Quality Department.

Checking the goods does not only happen after the production is finished, but it already starts with the first sample. While the designers focus on the design, the colours and the total look and feel of the item, our quality department is already checking if the factory did a good job. They are checking things like the construction, the printing quality, the assembling and many more. Before we decide to take the item into the collection, the quality department wants to see a perfect sample from the factory that matches our high standards. Only when this sample is 100% correct, we can embrace a new clock in our collection.

When we develop the clock, we also develop the packaging. It is very important the packaging is strong and protects the clock.

The clock will be put in a plastic bag to prevent scratches. On the outside of the gift box you can find a small story about the clock and its designer, an EAN-label and a QR-code, providing more information about NeXtime.

After this process is finished we focus on the quality of the production. The chosen sample is the standard that the production needs to meet. Everything needs to be the same as this sample and this will be checked carefully.

Every shipment that is sent out from a factory is checked, based on the AQL II 2.5/4.0 standard. AQL stands for "Acceptance Quality Limit", and is defined as the quality level that is the worst tolerable (ISO 2859 standard). We chose a high standard, with clear guidelines, so all parties involved know what they can expect and what is expected from them.

PICTURES, PICTURES, PICTURES

It is important to make the online experience as 'real life' as possible. Customers want to see, touch, smell and hear the product. We therefore took photos from different angles for most of our clocks and added some interior pictures. We also made videos to show the unique features of a clock, like the movement or sound.

Our Download Center is constantly updated with the latest photos; make sure you and your customer use our latest photos, interior shoots, videos.

Tips to increase online sales

1. Show (new) pictures from different angles and in an interior
2. Add an elaborate description of the product
3. Show a short movie of the product

A pair of slim blade-like clock hands sit on and overlap a tiny central disc, making the surface upon which it sits become part of the kinetic art piece.

CARL
The possibilities of wood and metal are endless.

With just a piece of wood located in the middle, and frame made of stainless steel, it combines the soft, natural feeling of wood with the industrial feeling of metal. This minimalistic design is so chic, it looks like it came straight out of a modern art museum!

MOTION
“How is it possible that heart is really beating?”

Be amazed by the effect of moiré. It might look like a normal clock, but if you look better, the Motion clocks will blow your mind! While the disk is slowly moving, you can see the dial changing. This is truly unique, NeXtime is the only one who makes clocks with this moiré technique.

OFFICE

Focus is on clearly mentioning the time. Like on the so-called station clocks, great clocks for in the office, but also at home, since most are silent.

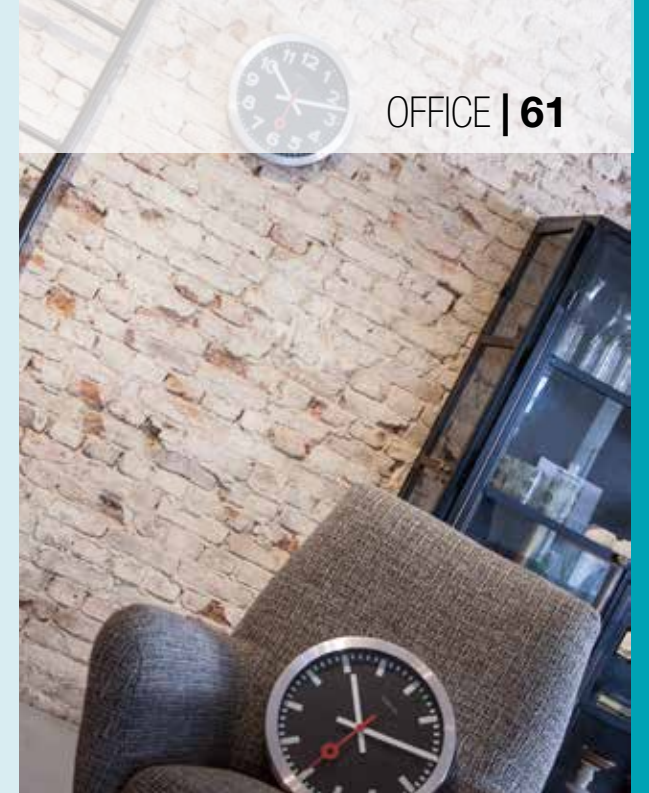

STATION CLOCKS

It's famous design blends tradition with the NeXtime style for both traditionalists who love the index stripes, and bringing it to the modern times with numbers.

With the silent movement, you don't hear it ticking as the second hand glides smoothly around the clock.
